David M Wins 6th Straight.

David M has now won 6 games in a row and seems poised to make it 7. Cesar's team had a lackluster day and failed to survive the Chase bye week. Once again, he gets mediocre RB2 play and it sunk him this week. David M, on the other hand, had Kittle, JT, and JSN come alive to carry him to victory.

Skattebo's Donuts Open for Business.

Unfortunately for Ben, his RB room failed to get the memo this week. At the same time, Skattebo, Texans D, and Loop combined for a total of 1 points. 3 players averaging .33 points in one week is a recipe for defeat. David G was carried by Tyler Shough. The Shough giveth and taketh away.

George Blows Joey Out The Water.

George was the benefactor of a Tre Tucker boom week. And the schedule plus Nabors getting fed by Nine and Jameis helped him put BTA on Joey. Joey got sold by Lloyd and Fannin. He's staring down the barrel of a second straight loss as he attempts to survive week 7 with virtually no one active on his roster. Meanwhile George faces Dylan's streaking team.

GAME OF THE WEEK:

Vic Slays Dylan 186.65 to 153.15.

The double TE stack worked out for Vic this week because Loveland came alive and Likely is cooking. This was a battle of unlikely players popping off. Henry and Adams sold Dylan, but he gets a few key players back next week. Vic on the other hand has surged up the rankings as his team is turning it around in this mid-season.

Devon buries Jolo in a low scoring affair.

Despite not playing an IDP Devon still won. Unfortunately for Jolo his team came up just short. And he was sabotaged by the rest of the league who told him to drop Travis Hunter, who would have won him this week. Josh Allen and Matthew Golden kept Devon up in the standings, and he plays the other defeated team (Ben) this upcoming week. Devon is still chasing David M, however, for the first seed.

Sorry That Had 2 Happen 2 U.

Dejon beat Jhajuan on the backs of his elite running backs and two day saving Kyle Pitts TDs. Jhajuan made the major blunder of dropping C.J. Stroud for Winston. The 7th round pick got 1 point, and Jaguars D got -2. Will injuries be the death of Jhajuan's playoff run this year? Meanwhile Dejon is going to play Vic, who is cooking with gas, while he faces injury and bye issues.

What's more likely to happen? A Devon trade or a Ben/Jolo win? Our experts predict on page 4.
