GAME OF THE WEEK

CESAR UPSETS DEVON IN A 136.55 TO 134.55 THRILLER

Devon falls to 7-1, joining the ranks of the rest of us losers. The hero of the week for Cesar was.... Checks notes... Joe “Don’t Wanna Play” Flacco??? The old man came to play: 223 yards passing, 2 passing TDs, and even one rushing TD totaling for 30.55 points. The rest of the recipe? Mix in two 20’s from Kimani Vidal and Jaylen Waddle. Swirl in a -8 from the Steelers D/ST. Add a dash of 4 from Harrison Bootlicker. Top with 5 from THEOOOOO Johnson.

Let’s be honest, we all wanted Cesar to win. But the Chiefs and Commanders made it close for a while. Big win for Cesar, keeping himself in the playoff race as he ends this week 4-4.

WEEKLY GAMES RECAP

JOLO SIMS TO NEXT AGAINST BEN IN A 170 TO 80.5 SNOOZE FEST

Jolo falls to 2-6 in a scheduled loss, although, at 2-6, what loss isn't scheduled? Ben ends the week at 5-3 with one of the best teams in the league. Did y'all know this man has Brandon Aiyuk waiting in the wings???? Ben makes some space between him and the rest of the pack while Jolo's season is almost over.

- Tl;dr: Jolo didn't start a team against Ben, and, even if he did, it wouldn't have mattered.
- Sharp play by Ben with a 25 point game from Buccaneers D/ST
- Justice Hill (.2), Sterling Sheppard (1.8), Kyle Monangai (2.4), Darnell Mooney (2.1), Dennis Allen (0), and Joey Slye (1). Yeah.

The team that Jolo started this week

JOEY GETS BACK ON TRACK IN A 147.95 TO 111.2 WIN AGAINST DYLAN

After losing 2 straight, Joey ends this week at 3-5, but this burst of energy is like when a person who is about to die gets energy. Look at his schedule ROS: Dejon, David M, David G, Devon, Ben, Cesar. On the other hand, Dylan is asking “what if?” The Bijan trade is looking like a disaster in hindsight with Chuba Hubbard potentially falling out the rotation, BTJ existing, and our favorite crazy white boy getting injured.

Both teams end the week at 3-5, but both teams may end up on the outside looking in as the playoff race heats up.

- Tl;dr: Joey stacked the Colts, and the Colts put BTA.
- Dylan got finessed—Cam Skattebo (10) snapped his ankle & Jake Ferguson (1.5) shit the bed on national TE day
- Nix (32.25), Taylor (37.4), Pittman Jr. (23.5): 93.15 points combined

Is Jonathan Taylor the best RB in the league again?

George bests Dejon in a 168.65 to 125.5 beat down

George cements his place in the playoff race, reaching 4-4, while burying Dejon's season (1-7). George may as well change his name to the Chargers: his Chargers stack (Herbert, D/ST, Dicker the Kicker) earned him almost half of Dejon's total points.

Can George split his end of season gauntlet and make the playoffs? Or is this week a mirage? Will Dejon win more than 4 games? Will he ever change his team's name? Either way, Sorry That Had 2 Happen 2 U.

- Tl;dr: George's team popped off against the worst team in the league.
- Dejon left 40 points (Jordan Love, Khalil Shakir) on the bench but he still would've lost. At least he didn't start the Bengals D/ST like he wanted to.
- Breece Hall had the game of his season, running for 2 TDs and passing for another.

"I went to the coaches this weekend, not complaining, but letting them know I need the ball at least 25 times"

DAVID G DEFEATS JHAJUAN 134.5 TO 133.1 IN AN UNDERWHELMING WEEK FOR BOTH TEAMS

David G secures Ian Book Believer finesser of the year and advances to 6-2 while Jhajuan drops to 5-3. The Caleb Williams (12.65) experiment is over. It's time for Jaxson Dart (23.35) and Tyrone Tracy (7.3) to lead Jhajuan's team to victory. Meanwhile, David G won because of some lucky breaks on touchdowns and a clutch forced fumble from Edgerrin Cooper (9.75). Sometimes it's better to be lucky than good. These two teams are likely headed toward a rematch in the playoffs.

- Tl;dr: both teams sold
- Isaiah Davis (17.9) was David G's highest scoring RB, almost out-scoring Bijan (5.8), Aaron Jones (5.0), and Tyler Allgeier (9.4) combined, but the Kayshon Boutte (16.5) lottery lives on.
- Chase Brown had his best game of the year (25.5) but Jhajuan couldn't get one more yard out of Cade Otton (8), or Rashee Rice (25.5) for a game winning TD.

Close, but no cigar. (x2)

VIC BLOWS DAVID M OUT 190.4 TO 108.1 AS BOTH TEAMS END THE WEEK AT .500

Vic adds to his win column in a game that was projected to be close, but ended up being a nightmare for David M. Has Quentin Johnston fallen back to Earth? His last 3 outings: 6.9, 11, 0. Maybe Treyveon Henderson (5.5) has earned Mike Vrabel's trust after fumbling the ball. Meanwhile Vic got almost 100 points from Indiana Jones (31.9), Achane (20.1), Tucker Kraft (33.3) and Chris Boswell (20) combined. Where Danny goes, Vic goes. The question is, do the wheels ever come off the wagon?

- Tl;dr: Vic showed up, David M was MIA.
- Things are looking up for Vic, the Eagles relearned how to pass the football and AJ Brown is set to slide back into the passing attack after the Eagles week 9 bye. Will he break .500? Or will he continue the pattern of losing 2 and winning 2?
- Thankfully for David M he can go back to winning games now that JSN is off of his bye. He can make up for the bad QB play from Baker Mayfield (5.6) and QJ going MIA (0.0)

WEEKLY MATCHUP PREVIEW AND PREDICTIONS

PREDICTED MATCHUP OF THE WEEK: Jhajuan @ Devon

- Who else would it be? Devon is the favorite here. Will another of Dejon's dropped players, Jaxson Dart, pop off and win this one for Jhajuan? I think I have to pick Devon here, but I wanna be in the room when these two start talking shit. N.B: It already started.

Jolo @ Dylan

- I don't want to pick between either of these teams. Both teams are dealing with injuries and byes. But, with Gibbs & Kyren back, I'll pick Jolo.

Cesar @ Ben

- This is a dangerous game, if Puka is back Cesar's team is dangerous. I can only see the future sometimes, but give me Cesar in this one, Ben has some bad byes and matchups.

Dejon @ Joey

- The Detroit Lions are off bye and Dejon's team is 1-7. Sorry This Has 2 Happen 2 U. (two of these in one recap?) Joey is my pick.

David G v Vic

- Tough matchups for David G, while Vic has great matchups for his best players. Picking Vic to win this one and to break the 2L, 2W cycle.

David M v George

- Drake Maye and JSN are going to be back in the starting lineup as George searches for a RB to fill the Breece Hall bye void. I'm thinking David M wins this one.

BEFORE YOU GO:

A moment of celebration for the former LSU coach, who goes by the name of Brian Kelly. The tax payers of Louisiana will now be paying him $50,000,000+ to sit on the couch. I wish I could be that good at being unemployed.

It was the worst of times because LSU did not make a single playoff appearance under Brian Kelly's tenure and he is the first LSU coach to not win a national title since Gerry DiNardo (1995-1999). He will get to pursue his passion in coaching after life: dancing with teenage men.
