GAME OF THE WEEK

DEJON WINS ON A WALK OFF MONDAY NIGHT MIRACLE, CRUSHING JOLO'S FANTASY HOPES IN 137.95 TO 128.5 COMEBACK.

Dejon's still winning? Two games in a row now?? Two back to back games of the week??? Dak Prescott's 268 yards and 4 TDs carried Dejon to victory with a 35 point outing. His keeper, George Kittle, added in 24.7. Saquon (10), Hunt (13.2), Zay Flowers (11.3), Nate Landman (12.75) and the Jags D/ST (12) helped Dejon eek out his 9 point victory. Khalil Shakir (.7), Rasheed Shaheed (4.9), and Dallas Goedert (4.4) efforts will not be forgotten. A little help from lady luck doesn't hurt either: Aaron Rodgers (12.6) got hurt mid game and DeVonta Smith (1.8) was MIA.

Dejon's season is still effectively over, but there is a 1% chance he could make the playoffs. There's more than a 1% chance he'll reach 4 wins though! Meanwhile, Jolo's still seeking to make the playoffs. Next year for sure buddy. I believe.

Dejon's savior this week. The Monday night miracle man. Dak Prescott is clutch now? At least in fantasy...

WEEKLY GAMES RECAP

DAVID G'S TEAM WAKES UP AND BOMBARDS JOEY 189.6 TO 130.05.

Tucker (34), Robinson (30.3), & Allen (47.85) dropped 112.15 themselves. If you added in Ceedee Lamb's contribution (17.6) the total goes up 129.75—only .3 less than Joey's whole team! Joey finally got a taste of his own medicine this week. Joey's black magic tried his best as he got 40 points from the Steelers (22) and Will Lutz (18). Ultimately, the Sun God (6.95), Bill (4.3), Rachaad White (8.2) and Xavier Worthy's (5.5) flops ended any hope for Joey to win this one.

David G advances to 8-3 on the season staying put at the 3rd seed. Joey, on the other hand, falls to 5-6 and the 8th seed. He'll need some help to cross the finish line into the playoffs. Will he get any?

- Tl;dr: David G benefitted from the wild game in Buffalo this week.
- David G will look to get better contributions from Ladd McConkey (4.3) and Aaron Jones (11.1); Sean Tucker likely isn't dropping 34 again.
- Joey's reliance on the Colts came to bite him in the ass this week. Would they have won the game? Maybe not, but it would've been closer with JT.

Only one player has thrown for 3 touchdowns and ran for three touchdowns in multiple games: Josh Allen, everyone.

JHAJUAN KEEPS IT ROLLING AGAINST CESAR, 149.85 TO 129.8.

TreVeyeon had a big load and busted all over the Jets, and Cesar, for 32.3 points. Ultimately, Henderson's contribution won Jhajuan this matchup. Nico Collins (23.2) also had another great game with Davis Mills at QB. Drake London contributed 18.9, but his Penix was cut off, and now he has some washed white guy named "Kirko Chains" throwing to him. Jacoby Brissett had a nice game too with 26.4 points. The major difference for Cesar, however, is that all his RBs disappointed. Judkins (5.9), Williams (10.3), Harvey (8), and Vidal (4.7) all underperformed. Can someone get Trey McBride (27.5) some help, please?

Jhajuan stays in first place at 8-3 while Cesar falls to 5th at 6-5. Too bad Cesar didn't start Michael Wilson (33.5). If he had he would've been in 4th place. Woulda, coulda, shoulda. It's better to be above .500 than below it, at least.

- > Tl;dr: Jhajuan's team had a more complete game while Cesar's team floundered.
- > Jhajuan won, but at what cost? Josh Jacobs (4) and London (18.9) both have injury designations after this week.
- > Cesar's new pieces only put up 21.4 combined. Maybe Ben wasn't crazy to trade JJettas (11.1) and Javonte.

Is the breakout real, or is this a Vrabel mirage? Either way, David M has to be thinking about what he may have had in Henderson. One of the worst picks in our draft has blossomed these last 2 weeks.

DEVON GETS BACK IN THE WIN COLUMN, WINNING 143.8 TO 120.65, AS GEORGE'S PLAYOFF HOPES ARE ON LIFE SUPPORT.

This was what Devon needed. Huge games from CMC (35.1), the Tet Offensive (33) and George Pickens (29.4) made up for an otherwise disappointing day from Lamar Jackson (2.65). On the other hand, George's Chargers strategy failed this week, with the three, Herbert (2.15), Charges D (-1), and Dicker the Kicker (8) combining for 9.15 points. Gonna need more than that. King Henry (20.2), Diggs (19.5), Deebo (22.2) and Tre Tucker (16.2) had solid outings, though.

George falls to the 9th seed at 5-6, needing a lot of help to make the playoffs now. He's already 100 points behind Ben in the PF tiebreaker, so he'll need some good fortune to knock on the door of the 6th seed. Devon stays in 2nd place, and finally gets that 8th win after 3 straight losses.

- Tl;dr: Devon's superstars made up for a lackluster day from the rest of his team.
- Devon still desperately needs Bucky Irving back. Nick Chubb (1.7) isn't cutting it. But with his stars, does he really need a second RB?
- Even if George played his best lineup he would've lost. He'll need better contributions from players like Breece (8.4) and Sutton (9.9) to keep his season alive.

George Pickens has turned out to be a WR1 lite despite the return of Ceedee Lamb. He's no normal WR2.

VIC DEFEATS BEN IN A BATTLE OF MID, 123.8 TO 105.55.

The lead here is that Vic got 64.9 points from Achane (21.5), Etienne (19.3) and Kelce (24.1). Talk about a vintage Kelce fantasy score. Vic won as handily as you could in a low scoring fantasy game. The Cesar trio combined for 27 points flat. I guess the silver lining is Jeanty (9.4), Waddle (8.2), and Jauan Jennings (9.4) did outscore JJettas and Javonte, but that's not saying much. RIP Sam Laporta (0). Although Ben left KW9's 20.1 points on the bench, it wouldn't have made a difference.

However, this game was consequential for the standings. Ben, who had a red hot start, has fallen back to Earth and now is on the outside looking in. Vic, whose season felt over after week 6, has won 4 out of the last 5. Vic has about the same PF as George, so this win is huge for him to try and get out of the PF tie breaker for 6th place. These two teams will likely be neck and neck in the standings as we finish the season.

- Tl;dr: Vic notched a massive victory over Ben, even if the football was poor.
- Will Vic ever get solid production from AJ Brown (11.9)? Or any of his other elderly wide receivers? (Allen, 9.3; Metcalf 9.9). And Romeo Drops (9.3) is back.
- Egbuka (9) has been super disappointing since week 6 besides last week. Ben got solid contributions from Higgins (15.3) and James Cook (20.4) at least.

I don't even have a real comment, I just still can't believe this was an actual reality TV show.

DAVID M CLAIMS VICTORY AGAINST DYLAN IN A BORING 127.45 TO 95.8 MATCHUP.

This was a very mediocre performance from both teams. Only 3 of the 22 players starting scored over 20. Of course, David M started all 3 of them: JSN (22.1), Jack Campbell (24.5), and Drake Maye (20.25). Y'all aren't getting a ton out of me when we're playing PPR with 11 starters and juiced scoring and you're scoring standard non PPR ESPN scores with like 9 players.

David M needed the win, moving up to 6-5 and the 4th seed. Dylan's playoff hopes are technically still alive as he falls to the back of the pack. He'd need a lot of help to make it. He's at 4-7 while the 6th seed is 6-5. Jhajuan has claimed he would've won this week if he took his trade offer, and Jhajuan will continue to keep track of this, only for his insatiable desire to always be right.

- Tl;dr: David M's studs put up just enough to win a low scoring affair.
- David M's team will need to meet its lofty weekly projections to make a deep playoff run —this week they fell almost 50 points short.
- Dylan's best players were his TEs and his Defensive/Special teams players... If only he had someone like Bijan.

Jack Campbell had a career high 15 tackles. 7 Solo. 1 TFL. And ultimately tackled Dylan's hopes of making the playoffs dead in its tracks.

WEEKLY MATCHUP PREVIEW AND PREDICTIONS

PREDICTED MATCHUP OF THE WEEK: Cesar v. Vic

- Which of these teams will break free from the pack? Whoever wins this matchup will rest easy at 7-5, while the loser gets sent back to the grind of .500. Maybe it's chalky, but I'll pick Cesar. If Achane was playing I'd have more faith in Vic.

Ben v. George

- This would've been the matchup of the week, but George's whole team is on bye. Herbert, the D/ST, Deebo. A lot of roster moves from George this week are needed. With that, give me Ben.

Joey v. Devon

- The return of Bucky(?), JT is fresh off bye, and Trey Benson might be back. This will be a fun matchup and I'm going to squarely plant my flag on Joey island. If Joey wins he'll be back at .500. Devon needs a win to keep up pace for a bye.

Dylan v. David G

- David G has the chargers bye. But this is the Bijan trade game. Although none of the players Dylan traded for are starting. Give me David G.

Dejon v. David M

- Dejon has a 1% chance to make the playoffs and I think David M will turn that 1% into 0.

Jhajuan v. Jolo

- Sorry Jolo, you're eliminated. I'm not giving this much time. Jhajuan to win.

COMMISH PICK'EM'S RECORD:

11-7 (Of course Dejon broke my perfect week, it's only fitting)

- Last week picks:
 - I'm an idiot → Jolo (sorry, cursed)
 - Called it → Jhajuan; David G; David M; Vic & Devon (you're welcome)
