PLAYOFFS RECAP

BEN ADVANCES AGAINST DEVON IN THE BATTLE OF SHIT, 120.6 TO 108.8.

First, congrats to Jhajuan for advancing to round 3 of the playoffs. Oh wait, sorry, this is recapping this week's game. Right. Well. One of these teams had to win. The king maker this week was James Cook (31.1), who outscored the next highest scorers on both teams by 13 points. Ben got here by also getting a solid game from Jauan Jennings (18.7) and the swing from what should have been a CMC (17.2) TD into a Jennings TD. But, legitimately everyone else on his team was average. The biggest story is who will Ben pick up at QB? Mahomes (12.95) is out for the rest of the year and Ben's only other QB is Penix (why?).

Unfortunately for Devon, there are multiple combinations of Adonai Mitchell (18.9) being in his lineup that would have won him this week's matchup. His team failed to show up when it mattered: Bucky (8.1), Tet Offensive (4.5), Pickens (6.3), Kincaid (6.4), Addison (8.6) and Packers D/ST (0.0). A bunch of bums. Lamar (18.1) and CMC used to be a killer combo who could carry a team, but not this year. Roquan Smith (17.5) also deserves a shoutout. Devon will go down to the winner's consolation bracket in his first year returning to the playoffs since losing to Joey in our inaugural championship.

Pictured: Ben holding up his only hope at making a run to the championship. S/O James Cook for a phenomenal season topped off with excellent value in this year's draft.

CESAR REPEATS HISTORY, DEFEATS DAVID G IN THE FIRST ROUND 160.05 TO 144.2.

Meanwhile, Cesar has to face David M in a real playoff matchup™. However, on his circuit of David's he completed the first lap by winning against David G. Trey McBride (37.4) has been the leader of Cesar's team, and, if he wants to make it to the championship will need continued sustained production. The tandem of Puka Nacua (27.9) and Matthew Stafford (26.6) helped soften the blow of the 49ers donut and Quinshon Judkins (4.7) stinker. Michael Wilson (16.4) came down to Earth, but Cesar has Mike Evans (20.7) and DJ Moore (22.9) waiting in the wings.

On the other hand, David G's season is over in the same fashion as the last. Josh Allen (32.45) and Bijan (29.5) tried their bests, but Ladd McConkey (4.0), Jayden Higgins (1.4), Isiah Likely (0), and Omarion Hampton (7.5) all disappointed. There wasn't a winning line up left on David G's bench, at least! Allegedly, he was going to pick up Trevor Lawrence and start him, which would've won him the week. (I really was, I'm not lying). But if my aunt had nuts she'd be my uncle. Regardless, he'll go on to play Devon for 5/6th place for the next 2 weeks.

Trey McBride hasn't been just the best TE, but one of the best weapons in football in recent weeks. Kyler gotta go man, he's too short to see this absolute beast.

RAPID FIRE RECAP

JOEY FENDS OFF VIC, STAYS ON TOP THE CONSOLATION BRACKET 171.7 TO 142.5.

- Tl;dr: BO NIX (40.1) & THE SUN GOD (41.4).
- Joey also had a great game from Jamo (26.4), but the rest of his team was quite lackluster.
- Joey scored 171.7 despite CRod's donut and the Browns D/ST's single point.
- Travis Etienne Jr (31.5) remains a staple for Vic, but Joe Burrow (3.5) really shit the bed.
- Vic looked like he could've made a run had he made the playoffs. Had he made it in, he would've advanced to the 2nd round... Tough beat.

GEORGE ADVANCES UP THE LADDER, BEATING DYLAN 141.85 TO 117.4.

- Tl;dr: Williams (25.4) and Sutton (24.3) made all the difference.
- George also got a Zay Flowers (17.3) contribution for once and, in his tradition, received 37.75 points from his IDP, DST and Kicker combined...
- Will George be the king of shit mountain by the end of round 3? He'll have to beat Jolo this week for a chance at the crown.
- It's almost like the fantasy gods want Dylan to suffer. Hurts (30.65) finally had a good game for once. All to get 10 points or less from 6 of his fantasy teammates.
- At least Brian Thomas Jr (17.1) is coming alive?

JOLO WINS THE BATTLE OF ASS AGAINST DEJON, 149.1 TO 137.35.

- Tl;dr: The best game of the week was between the two worst teams.
- Jolo got massive production from Jordyn Brooks (27.25), Kyren (21.8), Darren Waller (25.6) and the Eagles D/ST (16).
- Can Jolo win his way to the top of the consolation bracket after such a disappointing season? We'll see next week.
- Dejon got great games from Goedert (25), Olave (20.5), Saquon (17.2) and Scary Terry (15.9)
- Unfortunately, relying on shitty NFL teams typically means your team loses, and that's been the story of Dejon's season.

ALL STAR TEAM OF THE WEEK:

WEEKLY MATCHUP PREVIEW AND PREDICTIONS

PREDICTED MATCHUP OF THE WEEK: Cesar v. David M

- The battle of the Irish. Cesar's team is potent and so is David M's. But with how hot Trey McBride has been, and with JJetta's getting real QB play, I think I'll have to ride with Cesar.

Ben v. Jhajuan

- Ben's team is injured. Jhajuan's team just put up 200 on bye with a donut on the roster. Jhajuan has a cake walk to the championship.

David G v. Devon

- These two teams play each other for the next two weeks* (IIRC). So it doesn't really matter. David G.

George v. Joey

- I don't think George's team is that good and I think he'll be playing for 9th place. Joey.

Jolo v. Vic

- No analysis, just vibes. Jolo, go and win the damn consolation bracket.

Dejon v. Dylan

- My gut tells me Dejon. Both these teams are disappointments, but for different reasons.

COMMISH PICK'EM'S RECORD:

17-11

- Last week's picks:
  - I'm an idiot → Devon; Vic; Dejon (sorry, cursed)
  - Called it → Cesar; George (you're welcome)
