Hitler Nacua Launches Operation Barbarossa

David G finally gets a win on the board in this week's biggest margin of victory. Jolo is looking down the barrel of 0-4 and has been unlucky every week. Allegations are heard that David G has a super team, but a super team means nothing when they're 1-3.

Vic's Shot Clock Cheese Defeats George

Purdy and CMC's late TD's saved the week for Vic. Unfortunately for George Saquon got hurt and Swift fumbled. George's misfortune allowed for the Joey Black Magic game, however. Somehow, Vic is .500 while George's team seeks to regain its week 1 form.

Dejon Defeats Ben's RB Room

In a game that was over before the week started, Dejon triumphed over Ben's lackluster roster. Ben is in a pickle, as he only has 3 WR's, who combined for less than 10 points total. Dejon has buyer's remorse due to Ladd's donut. But who wouldn't want KW3? Dejon is already at half his best win total. While Ben is dead in the water.

GAME OF THE WEEK:

Joey's Black Magic Overcomes Jhajuan's "Super" Team

Despite the Jhajuan-Ben trade saga, Joey prevailed over Jhajuan. Was it a finesse? Maybe. But the Fantasy Gods have a sense of Justice and blessed Joey with a Nico Collins and Kyle Monangai legacy game. Jhajuan was counting his hens before they hatched, and it's a lesson learned to never count out your opponent before the game is played.

David M Launches Tet Offensive Against Devon

Another week, another dub. This time, David M gets Tet's magical SNF miracle and survived the Saints bum ass run defense. Vultures are everywhere, and they vultured this week from Devon. The super duper team is now 4-0 and looks like it may cruise to a championship.

Dylan Shocks Cesar

All that shit talking about Dylan's time blew up in everyone's faces. Somehow, he's 3-1 with Young, Tate and Bowers leading the way this week. Cesar suffered from bad luck with Chase coming out early and the Mahomes-Kelce stack having a down week. And Montgomery is still a fraud.
